

NEW YORK COUNTY COMMITTEE DIDN'T INDORSE HUGHES

No Reflection of Sentiment in Failure Except That Views of People are Wanted Before Any One's Candidacy is Promoted Officially.

HITCHCOCK IN STATEMENT

New York, Dec. 20.—By an almost unanimous vote the Republican committee of New York county last night refused to adopt resolutions endorsing Governor Hughes for the presidential nomination. When the resolution was offered a motion was immediately introduced providing that the resolution go over for consideration at the next meeting or the committee in January. This motion was adopted.

In the discussion which followed the adjournment of the committee, many most ardent supporters of Hughes declared the action of the committee in deferring his endorsement could not be construed as inimical to Hughes' candidacy. On the contrary it was said that there was a general disposition on the part of members to sound the sentiment of the voters at large before the committee committed itself. These men declared the resolution would be unanimously passed at the January meeting.

Before the meeting was called to order several members of the committee were distributing buttons proclaiming Speaker Cannon as the next presidential nominee.

Mr. Hitchcock Denies.

Washington, Dec. 20.—Mr. Hitchcock, first assistant postmaster general, last night contributed a signed statement to the literature which has grown out of the recent charges of a political conspiracy, with the secretary of the treasury at its head and Mr. Hitchcock, of the postoffice department, and Mr. Capers, of the internal revenue bureau, as his chief lieutenants. Mr. Hitchcock absolves himself from all disloyalty to the president and quotes the president himself.

Lost Wallet and $100.

George Goods, a negro farmer of Ballard county, has reported to the police that he lost a pocketbook containing $100 yesterday. He thinks he lost the money in some store in the city while buying goods.

Ollie James Greatly Pleased.

Washington, Dec. 20.—Ollie James is greatly pleased with his assignment on the banking and currency committee in view of the agitation for currency legislation. He regards this as being at present the greatest committee of the house.

PATRICIDE SMILED WHEN THE TRAP WAS SPRUNG.

Peoria, Ill., Dec. 20.—With a smile on his face, Edward Clifford, the youthful murderer of his father, was hanged here today. He killed his father, because the latter refused to give him spending money.

TRAINS AND BOATS

Bring Big Crowds Into Paducah for Christmas Trade.

To properly appreciate what good transportation facilities mean to a town one has only to pay a visit to the union station any day this week or next and see the great throng of Christmas shoppers from neighboring cities, who come to Paducah to take advantage of the great display of Paducah merchants. The trains leaving here at 6 o'clock every evening for Memphis and way points, and for Cairo, are veritable Santa Claus trains, with their great loads of Christmas shoppers and Christmas toys. The aisles of the coaches are packed with rocking horses and a host of other toys, and every passenger is burdened with bundles. It is a noticeable fact that the shoppers from out of town are not bringing the youngsters with them to visit Santa Claus. Probably that would lead to complications.

The out-of-town trade this year is probably heavier than it was last year, and each year there is a noticeable increase, due, of course, to the settling up of the country adjacent to Paducah and persistent advertising. The Cowling is bringing many shoppers from Metropolis and Brookport, and the up the river boats are contributing their share.

Paducah merchants are beginning to appreciate the great trade that can be diverted to Paducah from the outlying territory and are making efforts to bring it here, where it naturally belongs, with good results.

Case for Silver Service Being Made By Paducah Cabinet Maker Beautiful Piece of Workmanship

It is Now Proposed That the Presentation Should Take Place at Wickliffe So That it May be on Kentucky Soil.

In a few days Mr. F. W. Neumann, the cabinet maker of 842 South Fourth street, will have completed a cabinet for the silver service to be presented to the gunboat Paducah, that will be in keeping with the set itself. The service arrived packed in an ordinary packing case, and it was then decided to have the case for the service properly prepared in this city. The case, which is constructed of quarter-sawn oak, brass bound, is about 25 inches high by more than 40 inches across, allowing room for the 40 inch tray.

The case is nearly completed and is being polished. The corners are protected by brass, the hinges and clasp and lock are of ornate brass, and Mr. Wolff is engraving a plate for the top.

Inside the box is lined with chamamois, the bottom being padded and the case prepared so that all the pieces will fit into their proper places. The design, workmanship and arrangements will be a credit to the maker and the city.

It has been suggested that the presentation should take place at Wickliffe instead of Cairo, so that the ceremony may be performed on Kentucky soil.

PALERMO BURNED AFTER EXPLOSION ---MANY KILLED

Palermo, Italy, Dec. 20.—Fire, which followed the explosion in a powder magazine yesterday, is still burning. Four hotels and several homes were destroyed. Dozens of persons were injured and are expected to die. Twenty-five persons lost their lives at the time of the explosion.

Canadian Wreck.

Ottawa, Canada, Dec. 20.—A disastrous collision on the Canadian Pacific near Sandbury, in which passengers were killed, is rumored here. Railway officials state that no report of the wreck has been received.

DR. HENRY UNION MAN

At a meeting of the Central Labor Union last night the Rev. J. R. Henry, pastor of the Kentucky Avenue Presbyterian church, was accepted as a fraternal delegate to that body, and a committee was appointed to inform him of the union's action. The move is in accordance with the work of the Presbyterian Board of Missions which allows ministers to attend labor union meetings. Dr. Henry made known his willingness to attend the meetings of the Paducah Central Labor Union after his arrival here, and the matter was referred to the president of the American Federation of Labor, Dr. Henry will be the first minister to be accepted as a delegate to a labor union in the state of Kentucky.

REVOKE LICENSE WHEN CONVICTED IN HIGHEST COURT

City Solicitor James Campbell, Jr., stated this morning that the section of the license ordinance, giving the mayor the power to revoke the license of saloons convicted of violating the Sunday closing laws, had been made to conform with the decision of Judge Reed in the Hugh Boyle case. The principal defect in the old ordinance was that licenses could be revoked upon the simple conviction of offending saloonkeepers in the police court whether an appeal was taken from that court or not. The new ordinance provides that the license must be revoked after a final conviction.

It is understood that the city will appeal the Boyle case, time having been granted by Judge Reed for the filing of the transcript of evidence, and the general council having authorized it.

TAX MINE OWNERS TO PAY FOR LOSS OF MINER'S LIFE

Washington, Dec. 20.—Representative Lenhan, of Pennsylvania, introduced a bill in the house, calling for a cent a ton tax on all coal mines and that to each family, made dependent by a miner's death or injury $1,000 be paid.

Miners Meet January 21.

Indianapolis, Dec. 20.—A call for the nineteenth annual convention of the United Mine Workers of America was issued today. It will be held here January 21.

LARGE CROWD OF SHOPPERS IS THROGGING BROADWAY.

A large crowd of people were on the streets last night and the clerks in the stores were kept busy until late waiting on the Christmas shoppers. Even this morning with the bad weather conditions the stores were well filled with shoppers. Farmers who have delivered tobacco bought holiday goods liberally.

JOHN MITCHELL DYING

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 20.—John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, is stricken and the physician and a priest were sent for. He will probably die.

NORWAY'S MINISTER DEAD

Christiania, Norway, Dec. 20.—C. Hauge, Norwegian minister to the United States, died while on a snowshoeing trip. He married Mrs. Louise Todd Joy, of Louisville.

DR. HALL RESIGNS

Metropolis, Ill., Dec. 20.—The Rev. Mr. Hall, pastor of the Christian church here, has resigned; his resignation to take effect December 30. Dr. Hall has been deservedly a popular minister. He has accepted a call at Herrin which takes him to a larger field.

FARMERS' UNION ORGANIZER HAS TAKEN HOME HERE

State headquarters of the Farmers' Educational Co-operative Union of America, popularly known as the Farmers' Union, and a strong factor in the cotton raising industry, will be located at Paducah.

R. L. Barnett, of Texas, state organizer, arrived here yesterday with his family. He has already organized the counties of McCracken, Fulton, Hickman, Ballard, Graves, Carlisle and Livingston, and will work eastward from the Purchase.

A tobacco warehouse for the union is under construction at Kevil. Warehouses and elevators will be erected in every county, where the organization is perfected. A county board of directors elects as business agents as they deem necessary, and speculators are kept out of the handling of the crop.

"In these western counties our membership represents between 7,000 and 8,000 acres," said Mr. Barnett, "but all, excepting about 470 acres, were pledged to the tobacco association before the members joined us. We organize like a lodge with secret work, but our methods have never been marked by any kind of disorder. We control the cotton market price to a great extent. All our crops are pooled and handled through our own warehouses and elevators. We obtain advances from the banks on warehouse and elevator receipts and finance our own crops."

Grain Market.

St. Louis, Dec. 20.—Wheat, $1.10; corn, 57; oats, 53.
Washington, Dec. 20.—Census bureau reports of cotton ginned from this year's growth up to December 14 makes 9,281,077 bales.

ITALIAN GOV'T ASKS PROTECTION FOR ITS TOBACCO

Night Riders Come In For Investigation at Hands of Department of State and Governor Willson Promises to Take Care of Warehouses.

AMBASSADOR VISITS SEC. ROOF

Washington, Dec. 20.—The Italian government, through its ambassador, called to the attention of the department of state today the various alleged outrages against Italian citizens in this country, the latest of which is the burning by the "night riders" of Kentucky of a lot of Italian owned tobacco in Hopkinsville.

Secretary Root heard at length what the Italian ambassador had to say on the personal injury cases which have originated in Louisiana, Mississippi and Florida and the Kentucky tobacco case.

The burning of the tobacco, if it be shown to have been the property of subjects of the Italian government is a mere matter of indemnity. In all these issues, however, it was explained to the ambassador that the United States must deal first with the states which have original jurisdiction. The state department has therefore asked the governors of the states named to report progress. The principle in similar matters has often been explained to the Italian government, the last occasion being that of the lynching of Italians when Baron Fava was the Italian ambassador here.

Gov. Willson Talks.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 20.—Gov. A. E. Willson, who was in Louisville last night attending a banquet, when asked to give out a statement concerning the request of the Italian government for special protection for stocks of tobacco owned by it in districts where outrages have been committed, said:

"The telegram from the secretary of state reached me just as I was starting for Louisville, and all I could do at the time was to send him a formal acknowledgement of its receipt. Tomorrow, however, I shall look into the matter thoroughly, and if the tobacco holdings of the Italian government in Kentucky are of a quantity or nature requiring special measures for their protection, such protection will be promptly given. In any event they will be given equal protection with other owners of tobacco."

Will Inspect Streets.

The board of public works will inspect Harris and Kincaid streets in Mechanicsburg this afternoon. The streets recently have been improved by Contractor Ed Terrell.

I. C. CASE REOPENED

The fine assessed in police court yesterday morning against the Illinois Central railroad for blocking the Tennessee street crossing a longer period than five minutes was set aside by Judge Cross this morning and a new trial granted. The action of the court was at the request of the attorneys for the railroad company who were not informed that the case would be called yesterday and the fine was entered by default. The case was continued until tomorrow morning.

M'KNIGHT HEARD SPIES ARE AMONG WITNESSES THERE

Georgetown, Ky., Dec. 20.—J. S. McKnight, into whose hands the gun which killed Goebel passed at one time, said Youtsey asked him whether he could get any one to shoot Goebel. He claimed Youtsey tried to get Dr. Johnson, but McKnight warned Johnson to have nothing to do with Youtsey. McKnight said further he understood there were spies at work among the defense's witnesses in Georgetown and the prosecution set up a counter claim. Judge Morris indicated that he would make an investigation. J. B. Hurst denied he had ever prevented Noaks from warning Goebel of his assassination. He saw Youtsey exhibit some cartridges and say these will end the contest. He heard Powers say he would go home if any resort to violence was tried.

TAFT RETICENT BUT SAYS OBJECT IS ACCOMPLISHED

New York, Dec. 20.—Saying he has been away from the United States 120 days and is out of touch with public affairs, under no circumstances would Taft discuss political affairs when he landed today. He intimated his object in making the trip had been accomplished. A few friends met him on the wharf.

ALLEGED PARTICIPANT IN TROUBLE ARRESTED.

Roy Moore, colored, was arrested this morning by Patrolmen Clark and Starret, charged with being implicated in the general fight at Tenth and Husbards streets Monday night, in which Frank Thomas was seriously cut. Thomas is unable to attend court, and the wounds may result more seriously than was first thought.

ANNUAL MEETING OF ILLINOIS CEN. POSTPONED AGAIN

Chicago, Dec. 20.—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Illinois Central was postponed last night by order of Judge Ball, of the superior court, until March 2. The stock transfer books of the company are to be closed on the day preceding that upon which Judge Ball is to hand down his decision in the injunction suit now pending, and are to remain closed until the postponed meeting finally adjourns. In the meantime transfers of any portion of the 284,231 shares of stock affected by the injunction suit can only be made subject to the right of the court to inquire as to their genuineness.

CONSTITUTIONAL QUESTION RAISED IN POLICE COURT THIS MORNING

Judge Campbell Insists That no Excessive Penalty Can be Prescribed For Offense Against Common Carrier.

The constitutionality of the statute of 1904, making it a felony to steal merchandise of any amount from a common carrier, was attacked in police court this morning by Judge James Campbell, attorney for Hub Rice, charged with grand larceny, in the alleged theft of a few lumps of coal from a car in the Illinois Central yards. In the opinion of Judge Campbell the legislature did not have authority to pass a law,

CRIMINAL COURT CONCLUDES TERM WITH GRAND JURY

Several Indictments Returned, Which are Not Made Public and Jail and Other Public Buildings Reported in Good Condition By Body.

COURT CLAIMS ARE ALLOWED

The criminal term of circuit court came to a close with the report of the grand jury this morning and the various accounts of the court officials were allowed. In making its final report the grand jury said that the jail and various county buildings had been visited and all were found in a satisfactory condition.

Judge Reed handed down a decision in the case of S. J. Foust against R. F. Farmer, giving the plaintiff a judgment for $254.30.

All the prisoners given penitentiary terms were sentenced last Saturday and will be taken to the penitentiary at the earliest convenience of the sheriff.

The grand jury made its final report this morning and was discharged by Judge Reed. The jury brought in 30 new indictments, 25 of which will not be made public until after arrests are made. The other five are jail cases and include indictments against the negro women who are charged with looting Cornelia Reed's house.

Public Consistory.

Rome, Dec. 20.—The public consistory which was personally conducted by the pope yesterday, was the occasion of a magnificent pageant. Thousands of tickets were distributed for the ceremony and a great throng assembled, which not only crowded the halls and corridors of the consistory, but overflowed into the plaza of St. Peter. New cardinals were introduced in turn, and kneeling at the foot of the throne, were formally installed, a master of ceremonies holding a red hat over their heads while the pope repeated the formula of installation. Then, after receiving the papal embrace, they received a fraternal salute from each of the cardinals.

Mr. Augustus Wieman, of 707 South Twelfth street, swallowed carbolic acid this afternoon about 1 o'clock and is in a serious condition.

CENTRAL LABOR UNION

Nominations for officers of the Central Labor Union were made at the regular monthly meeting last night and a great many names were presented. It is probable that Mr. E. M. Willis, the veteran printer and president of the local Typographical union, will be elected president of the body, as his friends are urging his election. Mr. Willis probably is the oldest union man in the city and is well qualified for the place. The election will be held the first Thursday night in January.

OLD UNIFORM RESTORED.

Russian Soldiers to Wear Garb of Alexander II. St. Petersburg, Dec. 20.—The name-day of Emperor Nicholas, which is being celebrated with the usual ceremonies at Tsarskoe-Selo, has been signalled by the order restoring to the Russian army the picturesque uniform in the reign of Alexander II. This order will transform 35 out of 55 soberly-clad dragon regiments into hussars and Ulians, whose brilliant and showy garb is expected to popularize the service in the eyes of recruits and the population generally. This change is made, according to the phraseology of the order, because, during a long period of peace, the uniform must be brilliant and beautiful.

FIRE AT OBION.

Hotel and Postoffice Among Buildings Burned.

Union City, Tenn., Dec. 20.—Fire broke out in Lovell's drug store at Obion last night about 10 o'clock. The commercial hotel and five other business houses, the postoffice, hotel, Lovell's drug store, barber shop, Tucker's grocery store and others were all destroyed. The loss is estimated to be about $25,000, with about $15,000 insurance. The origin of the fire is not known. It was first discovered near the stove in the Lovell drug store, and, with a little presence of mind on the part of those who first discovered it, it might have been extinguished.

LEAGUE OF CLUBS

TAKES STRAW VOTE AMONG 5,000 PEOPLE IN NEW YORK.

Roosevelt Leads in First Choice and Hughes for Second Choice of All.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—John A. Stewart, president of the Republic League of Clubs of New York state, gave out a statement last night telling of the result of 5,000 inquiries as to preference for president. In a letter the statement says, addressed to "men of influence not classified directly with political organizations," the league expressed conviction of the sincerity of President Roosevelt's attitude with reference to a "second nomination," and asked for the names of "first, second and third choice for president of citizens of your community."

Two-thirds of the answers were received before President Roosevelt repeated his renunciation of a third term. The result of the poll on first choice as given in the statement was as follows:

Roosevelt 1,117
Hughes 297
Cortelyou 221
Taft 341
Cannon 39
Root 50
La Follette 166

Hughes Leads as Second Choice.

On second choice Hughes lead with 553, while Cortelyou was second with 449. Taft got only 153 for second choice. On third choice Cortelyou led with 343 and Hughes was second with 323. No other choice for Taft was given.

The league asked the men to whom it addressed its letter if the financial panic had impaired President Roosevelt's popularity, and in its statement says "another surprising development in the canvass is the relatively slight extent to which President Roosevelt's popularity with the mass of the people has been weakened by the present panic and newspaper criticism of his course."

Why Is Sugar Sweet?

If sugar did not dissolve in the mouth you could not taste the sweet. GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC is as strong as the strongest bitter tonic, but you do not taste the bitter because the ingredients do not dissolve in the mouth, but do dissolve readily in the acids of the stomach, as just as good for Grown People as for Children. Congo Treaty Brings Crisis.

Brussels, Dec. 20.—Following an examination of the complete extent of the Congo annexation treaty, the liberal members of the chamber of deputies voted unanimously in caucus today to oppose the treaty on the ground that the conditions therein set down unduly limit the sovereignty of Belgium and disregard Belgium's rights. There is a prospect that the treaty will be withdrawn and that the cabinet will thereafter resign.

Teheran Crisis Is Maintained.

Teheran, Persia, Dec. 20.—The strained situation between parliament and the shah was unmarked today by acts of open disorder. Both the reactionaries and the constitutionalists are determined and a crash may easily be precipitated.

"A woman whose hair is falling out writes us to ask what to do with it," said the snake editor.

"Tell her to throw it away," replied the sporting editor.

The Lord never forgets the man who forgets himself.

IT IS A FACT.

(Buffalo, N. Y., Times.)

In view of the general belief in the incurability of chronic Bright's Disease and Diabetes, we were asked to send a representative to interview three parties in this city, two of whom have recovered and the third is getting well.

A member of our staff went to one of the parties on Jefferson street to investigate. He is a business man. He gave the reporters the following facts: He had a friend who was so far gone with Diabetes that he could hardly move. Later he was astonished to see him back again at his employment. Meanwhile his wife developed the same disease. Later she was again about her daily occupations.

The business man in question was intensely interested, as he was a great sufferer himself from Diabetes. He learned how their recoveries had been effected, and procured the treatment for himself, with the result that he has resumed the personal care of his business.

It so happens that the member of the Times staff who verified these facts also knows of another case in this city that is yielding to the same treatment. That chronic Bright's Disease and Diabetes, deemed fatal the world over, are now curable is being established here as well as in California.—Buffalo Times.

I sent for this treatment in the interest of people here. If those interested in the curability of Bright's Disease or Diabetes will call I will give them full information.—W. B. McPherson, Paducah, Ky.

COMMITTEE

WILL INVESTIGATE SITUATION ALONG WATER FRONT.

Board of Aldermen Take Steps to Learn Needs of River Traffic in Way of Wharf Room.

Saunders Fowler was present at the meeting of the aldermen last night and asked the board for 200 feet of river frontage at the foot of Jefferson street for wharfbait purposes for the Cairo and Paducah Packet line, but as there is now an ordinance prohibiting a wharfbait at that place, Alderman Hank made the motion and it was carried that the city treasurer shall not receive any rental or grant any river frontage for the year 1908 until an investigation can be made by a committee of three, appointed to see whether a new ordinance or an amendment to the standing one would be best. Aldermen Chamblin, Miller and Hannan were appointed on the committee. The new wharfbait will be put in immediately after the space is granted.

The board was called to order with six members present, Aldermen Miller and Stewart coming in later. Mr. C. T. Allen was released from a sewer assessment of $395. This was allowed in the lower board.

A letter was read from the Indiana Audit company, in regard to collecting money due the city, the matter was referred to the finance committee.

The bonds offered by E. J. Paxton, Wes Orr, Robert Hicks, Maurice McIntyre, A. Franke, J. L. Gaither and R. D. Barnett were accepted as passed by the lower board. C. E. Bell gave bond in the U. S. Fidelity company of Baltimore for market-master. His bond was accepted.

The report of the joint finance committee was accepted and drafts ordered drawn to pay it.

On account of a new license ordinance having to be amended it was referred back to the ordinance committee. One amendment suggested was that the hucksters and milk dealers' license be done away with.

In regard to the complaint at storm sewer assessment of property owners on Broadway between Twenty-third and Twenty-fifth streets, the aldermen ordered the assessment to stand, and allow property owners to establish their right to exemption in court.

NO.

Albeit "Yes" is the sweetest word that ever fell from mortal lips, the greatest word in our language is "No."

"No" has given us civilization. If Adam had been able to say "No" we were without sin. Columbus discovered America because, while everyone else was standing around saying "Yes," the world is flat like a buckwheat cake," he was tearing his hair and exclaiming "No." Galileo found out what the earth does on its axis because while the knowing ones of his time were saying, "The world is really stationary, and only seems to be going around because we do not have prohibition," he was hurling stones from the tower of Pisa and thundering "No." Alexander became the conqueror of the world because, asking himself if the terrible King Darius could whip him, he had the hardihood to exclaim "No" and went out and knocked the imperial stuffing out of the aforesaid Persian.

The dawn of civilization occurred when man, waking in his dim cave, asked himself, "Am I satisfied with this savagery?" Am I always to be a wearer of skins and a hotfooted after the nimble deer? "No," he exclaimed, springing from his bed of boughs and suspending his leopard skin trousers for the day on a few hickory skewers run through his tough hide. That same afternoon they moved out of the cave into the first log house.

There is a great piece of statuary in Paris called "The Thinker." It represents man first exercising his wits. "Am I thinking of a thing?" he had asked himself. "No." Now we have a thought for the day prepared in advance.

If anyone asks you if you know the greatest word in our language, tell him "No." It won't sound any stranger than most truth. Watch your boss when you ask him if you can have a day off to go quail hunting. "No," he will say, which is why he is boss. Everybody says "Yes" to a man who can say "No."

Roscoe Conkling used to say that he became a great orator because he spent hours in an empty hall enunciating the word "Rome" so his wife could hear it at the other end.

If you will practice on "No" until your wife can hear you across the table you will get rich.

Learn to say "No."—Clark McAdams in Post Dispatch.

Justice Harlan, the Man.
(Washington Herald.)
Seventy-four years old, six feet two in his stockings.

A firm believer in the Bible and the Constitution of the United States; a Presbyterian in religion.
A devotee of golf as a mode of exercise.

Born in Kentucky, studied law, practiced before reaching his majority and entered public life at twenty-two.

Raised as a Union regiment and fought in the Civil War for fifteen months as a Colonel.

Caused the nomination of Hayes for President by switching the Kentucky delegation for him in the convention of 1876.

Appointed to the Supreme Court soon after Hayes' inauguration.

Liver in Order.
"I don't know whether the pompous young lady" who brings me my breakfast has been listening, or whether she thinks for herself," says the young man who takes his meals in a restaurant, to a Washington Herald reporter, "but she's getting to be almost funny. Yesterday I ordered liver and bacon, and when I waited and waited till I'd committed everything in the Washington Herald to memory.

"Come hither," I said to her. "I gave you my order half an hour ago. Do I get that liver?"

"She stopped chewing gum longer than I ever knew her to do before.

"You get it," said she; "but there were two orders in ahead of yours. You don't want your liver; out of order, do you?"

Why Not a Pair of American Lady or American Gentleman Shoes?

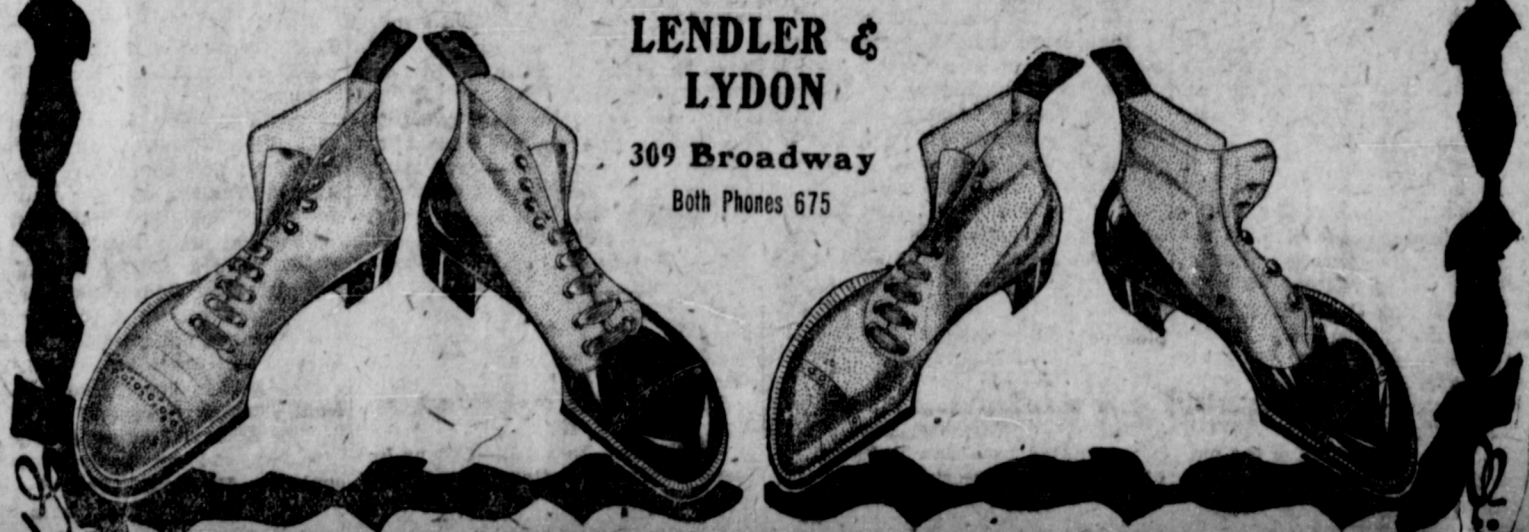

Certainly nothing you could give would be more appreciated than a pair of fine shoes, such as the American Lady or American Gentleman. Their trim, well-bred appearance and perfect fit would give pleasure for a long, long time after Christmas day. Let your gift be a sensible one this season. A pair of these good shoes just fills the bill—and, not least important, the price is a sensible one, too.

Daily Thought.

When anger spreads through thy breast, guard thy tongue from barking idly.—Sappho.

It is not surprising that anatomical experts should be interested in the welfare of Bonaparte.

Lack of self-restraint is a sign of loose mental organization.

Hopkinsville now has two hustling secret societies.

Members of the Christian county bar and citizens of Hopkinsville have signed a petition for a special session of the Christian circuit court. It is up to Judge Cook to call it.

We shall not miss the fleet. The Paducah is headed this way.

Detroit children contracted typhoid fever from articles eaten at a pure food show.

New York physicians have discovered the identity of the winged death in the common house fly, which carries contagion on its feet. Don't know any remedy unless they make the flies wear arctic, or set Luther Burbanks to breeding a species of fly without any feet.

TAX ON WHEELS.

In Chicago a license tax is imposed on vehicles graduated according to the number and size of the wheels.
The revenue of the city is augmented hundreds of thousands of dollars by this means. The principle of the tax is just. It lays the burden of street improvements on those, who are immediately and materially benefited.
It makes no difference to the pedestrian, as far as his personal comfort and convenience are concerned, whether or not a street is paved;
while the vehicle with four wheels does more to wear out the street than a vehicle with two; heavy wheels are harder on paving than are light wheels and scorching does more damage than running at an ordinary gait. Cities, like Paducah, which have few permanently improved streets, and find their annual budgets of expenses growing apace and the income lagging behind, must seek new sources of revenue. They would do well to look to other cities, where the burden of taxation has been distributed so that those who benefit most, must pay most.

THE GREAT MYSTERY.

A great fleet of battleships steamed out of Hampton Roads through the bay into the wide ocean until the last vessel was huddled down in the distance on the long voyage around The Horn, but they are not lost to us until they reappear on the other side of the continent. Repeated messages have been caught at wireless telegraph stations and flashed over the country as the fleet proceeded southward. It was not so long ago that when a ship called out to sea and vanished from sight, she was gone completely, out of touch with the world, and a great mystery enveloped her movements until from the other side of the ocean came back word of her safe arrival.

But now the vibrating ether agitates delicate instruments attuned to pitch, and behold, another mystery—out of sight, out of hearing, out of touch, we talk with those who sail the deep!
Science adds wonder to wonder and reveals to us each year new evidences of the great mystery.

MINING ACCIDENTS.

Something is at fault about these repeated mine horrors. West Virginia produced one a week ago, in which 700 lives were snuffed out.
This week in Alabama 61 miners were suffocated, and yesterday 400 human beings were trapped underground in Pennsylvania by blazing gas to be choked or slowly tortured to death by fire. States have mining laws, but what are they, if they are not enforced? It is not fair to say that men in charge of great enterprises are disregardful of human life, nor is it just to the hundreds of mines free from such conditions to condemn them all out of hand because of isolated, if terrible cases, like those just recorded. It is probably true that the detriment to the physical property of the company and the liability to vindictive damages on account of the loss of life, would move an otherwise inconsiderate corporation to safeguard its workings.
Dust explosions, fire damp, after-damp and all the strange dangers that attend the underground chambers, multiplied by the carelessness of the workmen themselves, extenuate much of the casualty list of the coal mining industry. One doesn't hear of cave-ins and other accidents against which good engineering may guard; but when 400 lives are lost in the twinkling of an eye by an agency, well known to the industry and usually quite easily detected, it is time for searching investigation.
If any one is remiss, he should not escape his deserts; and if science and engineering have not solved the problem of protection, it is high time for a solution.

TAFT AND THE TARIFF.

Leaving out the advantages and disadvantages of the administration's support of the Taft boom, and the factional fight for control of the Ohio delegation, the real measure of Secretary Taft's strength over the country will be found, when it is learned just how strong tariff revision is in the councils of the Republican party. Taft early announced in favor of tariff revision, and some appreciable effect was noted across the Mississippi river, while the high, unyielding tariff men are muttering against him through the eastern press. If the latter persist in antagonizing the Taft movement on that ground they will drive the revisionists into the Taft camp for refuge, and accomplish just what they desire to avoid, popular demand for the one they oppose, and raise an issue on which they will get the worst. Taft's best hold on the people of Ohio is the enmity he aroused in fighting corruption in his own party. The antagonism of the "stand patters" will be his strong card in the ante-convention free-for-all.

FASHION'S DECREE.

Has lynching become unfashionable; or has crime decreased? Statistics, compiled by those who have a mania for that sort of thing, record that only 42 gangs went out at night and committed murder in retaliation for crimes during 1907. This compares favorably with the record of 72 for the preceding year. The statistics reflect credit on county and state authorities; for during the year they manifested a determination to meet attempted mob violence with force and the mob spirit was quelled, except under the most severe provocation. The crimes for which lynchings were held this year were invariably assault, attempted assault or murder. The preceding year lynchings were indulged in for trivial provocation. One does not count it always a low state of morals, when simple natures obey a primitive instinct to wreak instant vengeance, when the victim deserves the punishment. Kentucky, we are proud to observe, had not a single lynching bee.

SOMETHING DIFFERENT.

It's easier to drive some men to drink than it is to hold them back.

"Why do you stick to those old jokes?" "Why shouldn't I?" "Everybody's heard 'em." "That's it. Nothing puts people at ease like knowing just exactly when to laugh."—Washington Herald.

"Here, you!" growled the cranky man in the reading room, "you've been snoring horribly." "Ugh! hey?"
gurgled the drowsy one. "If you only kept your mouth shut," went on the cranky one, "you wouldn't make so much noise." "Neither would you," replied the other.—Catholic Standard and Times.

For William and for Lew.

And don't forget "dear papa;"
Hang up a sock for him,

He's got a lovely chance!

BLINDFOLDED

A Mystery Story of San Francisco

BY
EARLE ASHLEY WALCOTT

(Copyright 1906, the Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

"How's your nerve, Wilton?" inquired the King of the Street calmly.
"Are you ready for some hot work?"
"Quite ready."
"Have you a revolver about you?"
"Yes."

"Very good. I don't want you to kill any one; but it may come in handy as an evidence of your good intentions."

He led the way to California street below Sansome, where we climbed a flight of stairs and went down a hall to a glass door that bore the gilt and painted letters, "Omega Mining Co., J. D. Storey, Prest."

"There's five minutes to spare," said
my employer. "He may be alone."
A stout, florid man, with red side-whiskers and a general air of good living, sat by an over-shadowing desk in the handsome office, and looked sourly at us as we entered. He was not alone, for a young man could be seen in a side room that was lettered
"Secretary's Office."

"Ah, Mr. Knapp," he said, bowing deferentially to the millionaire, and rubbing his fat red hands. "Can I do anything for you to-day?"

"I reckon so, Storey. Let me introduce you to Mr. Wilton, one of our coming directors."

I had an inward start at this information, and Mr. Storey regarded me unfavorably. We professed ourselves charmed to see each other.

"I suppose it was an oversight that you didn't send me a notice of the directors' meeting," said Doddridge Knapp.

Mr. Storey turned very red, and the King of the Street said in an under-tone: "Just look that door, Wilton."
"It must have been sent by mail," stammered Storey. "Hi, there! young man, what are you doing?" he exclaimed, jumping to his feet as I turned the key in the lock. "Open that door again!"

"No you don't, Storey," came the fierce growl from the throat of the Wolf. "Your game is up."

"The devil it is!" cried Storey, making dash past Doddridge Knapp and coming with a rush straight for me.

"Stop him!" roared my employer.
I sprang forward and grappled Mr.
Storey, but I found him rather a large contract, for I had to favor my left arm. Then he suddenly turned limp and rolled to the floor, his head thumping noisily on a corner of the desk.

Doddridge Knapp coolly laid a hard rubber ruler down on the desk and I recognized the source of Mr. Storey's discomfiture.

"I reckon he's safe for a bit," he growled. "Hullo, what's this?"

I noted a very pale young man in the doorway of the secretary's office, apparently doubtful whether he should attempt to raise an alarm or hide.

"You go back in your room and mind your own business, Dodson," said the King of the Street. "Go!" he growled fiercely, as the young man still hesitated. "You know I can make or break you."

The young man disappeared and I closed and locked the door on him.

"There they come," said I, as steps sounded in the hall.

"Stand by the door and keep them out," whispered my employer. "I'll see that Storey doesn't get up. Keep still now. Every minute we gain is worth $10,000."

I took station by the door as the knob was tried. More steps were heard, and the knob was tried again.
Then the door was shaken and picturesque comments were made on the dilatatory president.

Doddridge Knapp looked grim, but serene, as he sat on the desk with his foot on the prostrate Storey. I breathed softly, and listened to the rising complaints from without.

There were thumps and kicks on the door, and at last a voice roared:
"What are you waiting for? Break it in."

A crash followed, and the ground-glass upper section of the door fell in fragments.

"I beg your pardon, gentlemen," I said, as a man put his hand through the opening. "This revolver is loaded, and the first man to come through there will get a little cold lead in him."

There was a pause and then a storm of oaths.

"Get in there!" cried Decker's voice from the rear. "What are you afraid of?"

"He's got a gun."
"Well, get in, three or four of you at once. He can't shoot you all."

This spirited advice did not seem to find favor with the front-rank men.

and the enemy retired for consultation. At last a messenger came forward.

"What do you want?" he asked.
"I want you to keep out."

"Who is he?" asked Decker's voice.
"There's another one there," cried another voice. "Why, it's Doddridge Knapp!"

Decker made use of some language not intended for publication, and there was whispering for a few minutes, followed by silence.

I looked at Doddridge Knapp, sitting grim and unmoved, counting the minutes till the injunction should come.
Suddenly a man bounded through the broken upper section of the door, tossed by his companions, and I found myself in a grapple before I could raise my revolver.

We went down on the floor together, and I had a confused notion that the door swung open and four or five others rushed into the room.

I squirmed free from my opponent and sprang to my feet in time to see the whole pack around Doddridge Knapp.

The King of the Street sat calm and forceful with a revolver in his hand, and all had halted, fearing to go farther.

"Don't come too close, gentlemen," growled the Wolf.

Then I saw one of the men raise a six-shooter to aim at the defiant figure that faced them. I gave a spring and with one blow laid the man on the floor. There was a flash of fire as he fell, and a deafening noise was in my ears. Men all about me were striking at me. I scarcely felt their blows as I watched them off and returned them, for I was half-mad with the desperate sense of conflict against odds. But

Our Men's Toggery Department is full to overflowing with choice and exclusive ideas.

at last I felt myself seized in an iron grip, and in a moment was seated beside Doddridge Knapp on the desk.

"The time is up," he said. "There's the sheriff and Caswell with the writ."

"I congratulate you," I answered, my head still swimming, noting that the enemy had drawn back at the coming of reinforcements.

"Good heavens, man, you're hurt!"
he cried, pointing to my left sleeve where a blood stain was spreading.
The wound I had received in the night conflict at Livermore had reopened in the struggle.

"It's nothing," said I. "Just a scratch."
"Here! get a doctor!" cried the King of the Street. "Gentlemen, the directors' meeting is postponed, by order of court."

REPORT MISCONSTRUED.

Status of Legal Resident Jews Has Not Changed.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 20.—A dispatch from Vladivostok, in reply to an inquiry, shows the statement telegraphed from there that the Jews in Vladivostok have been ordered to depart within four days, to have been founded in misconception. The status of the Jews who are legally entitled to reside at Vladivostok has not been changed. The order signed by the commandant of the port applies to only those Hebrews who by underhand influence or on sufrage, had succeeded in establishing a residence in the city.

Farmer Kills Self at Jackson.

Jackson, Tenn., Dec. 20.—Henry Baker, aged 67, a well known and respected farmer at Hicksville, a Jackson suburb, killed himself shortly after 7 o'clock this morning, by firing a bullet from a 44-caliber revolver into his temple. The suicide occurred while he was alone in his room. When reached by his wife and two daughters, who were in the house, he was breathing his last. The only cause advanced for the fatal act is he has been troubled some with attacks of vertigo, during which his mental state was somewhat unbalanced. He leaves a wife, three sons and three daughters.

The Body Merely Machine.

There are just any number of diseases in which the Osteopathic is the only treatment that will give any relief at all.

The various phases of neuralgia and rheumatism as an example yield more readily to the Osteopathic treatment than they do to medicine.
So too do lumbago, chronic headaches, partial paralysis and kindred ailments, and to one who knows the first principals of Osteopathy it is easy to see why this is so.

Osteopathy is a scientific system of exercise for the nerves and organs of the body—simply manipulation by which it restores structural normality. The body is a machine run by unseen forces called life, and that it may run harmoniously it is necessary that there be liberty of blood, nerves and arteries from the generating point to destination. This is what osteopathy does—gives liberty to the blood, nerves and arteries.

PEOPLE AND SOCIAL EVENTS

Miss Wright Will Wed.

Miss Eleanor Wright, of the B fourth grade at the Washington school, has tendered her resignation, effective at once. Miss Wright will return to her home at Mayfield, where she will be married to Mr. Walter Beadles on Christmas night. She has been connected with the city schools about four years and is highly esteemed by pupils and patrons.

Miss Wright is a niece of Mr. J. T. Wright, the tobacco broker, 333 North Fourth street, and has resided with his family here. She is an attractive and talented girl and has made many friends in Paducah. Mr. Beadles is bookkeeper of the May Pants factory and a popular young man.

Mrs. Rudy Chairman of State Civil Service Reform.

The following appointments are announced by Mrs. Letcher Riker, president of the Federation of Women's clubs of Kentucky:

Mrs. James A. Rudy, of Paducah, has been appointed chairman of the State Civil Service Reform committee to succeed Mrs. Lyman Chalkley, of Lexington, who goes to Suwanee, Tenn., to live.

Mrs. Thurston Ballard, of Louisville, has been made chairman of an especial committee of Kentucky Federation of Women's clubs, to make an appeal to the people of Kentucky for funds to further the work of Federation along the line of educational betterment in Kentucky.

Afternoon Tea for Debutantes.

Mrs. W. F. Bradshaw is at home this afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock in honor of Miss Catherine Quigley and Miss Philippa Hughes, two debutantes of the winter, and her daughter, Miss Eloise Bradshaw, who arrived today from Belmont College, Nashville, Tenn., to spend the holidays. It is a handsomely appointed Afternoon Tea, with the Christmas colors, red and green throughout in the decorations.

Woman's Club.

The Woman's club met yesterday afternoon in business session at the club house. In the absence from the city of the president, Mrs. James A. Rudy, Mrs. Edwidge Palmer, the vice president, filled the chair. After the usual routine business and department reports, Mrs. William B. Webb was elected a member of the club. It was decided to hold a business session of the club on January 2 from 2 to 3 o'clock, at which the members can pay their dues for the year. From 3 to 5 o'clock the club will keep open house and receive their friends socially.

The open meeting of the Art department was postponed until January 16.

Y. L. and Y. M. Clubs.

Miss Lottie Lofton entertained the Y. L. and Y. M. club last evening at her home, 231 Clements street. Games and music were features of the evening. Dainty refreshments were served. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Peak, Miss Anna Vagin, Edith Marsh, Ruby McDonald, Eunice Quarles, Nora Dugan, Lillian and May Boueno, Lottie Lofton; Messrs. Earl Ingram, Harley Rector, Volvin Quarles, Aeral Simmons, Virgil Cooper, Laurence Jones and Benly Lofton.

Mr. E. Watson, of Memphis, is expected to arrive tomorrow to spend the holidays with his father, Mr. G. P. Watson, the well known Illinois Central engineer.

Mr. Bell Nichols, who is attending State college, has returned for the holidays.

UNION PACIFIC MAKES BIGGEST YEAR'S SHOWING.

New York, Dec. 20.—Showing a final surplus of over ten and a half millions after deducting all charges, dividends and betterments, and a total of 17 1/2 per cent earned on common stock, the report of the Union Pacific railroad and its auxiliary companies for the year ending June 30, was published today. It was the largest year's showing. The net earnings were thirty-five and half millions, an increase of three and a half millions.

Would Wipe Out Cotton Exchanges.

Washington, Dec. 20.—Under the terms of a bill introduced in the house by Representative Scott, of Kansas, all gambling in futures on grain, cotton and other products would be entirely wiped out. Mr. Scott's bill forbids absolutely all dealing or trading in products of this sort and fixes heavy penalties on conviction for violation of the terms of the bill. The bill does not interfere with legitimate trading in the grain or cotton for immediate use on delivery. So drastic are its provisions, however, concerning speculation as to future prices that its enactment by congress would undoubtedly wipe out the Chicago board of trade, the New York cotton and the New York produce exchanges.

Wireless Phone a Success.

Copenhagen, Dec. 20.—It was announced today that wireless telephone messages had been transmitted successfully yesterday between the Weissen Zee wireless station at Berlin and the Lyngby station, near this city. The distance is about 200 miles. The American minister, Dr. Maurice F. Egan, and representatives from the French legation visited the laboratory of Prof. Poulsen, who said that he hoped to communicate with America via Ireland by telephone in February next.

Miners Can't Agree on Terms.

Indianapolis, Dec. 20.—A subcommittee of the miners and operators reported a disagreement to the general committee at noon, saying it could not agree on the basis of a call for the interstate convention. Illinois operators, who stood alone in the way of settlement, said they would withdraw from the conference and let other states proceed with the settlement.

Wu Ting Fang Starts.

Pekin, Dec. 20.—Wu Ting Fang, who has been reappointed to the post of Chinese minister to the United States in succession to Sir Chen Tung-Liang Cheng, left Pekin today on his way to Washington. He will sail from Shanghai in January, taking with him a number of young Chinese who are going to study in the United States.

Treaty of Amity Signed.

Lima, Peru, Dec. 20.—Peru and Chile, through the medium of Senor Balmaceda, the Chilean minister to Peru, and Senor Polo, the Peruvian minister of foreign affairs, yesterday signed their first treaty of amity. One provides for a consular convention and the other concerns the pursuit of the liberal professions.

Robbed While He Slumbered.

Mr. J. H. Neale, of 1223 South Third street, reported to the police this morning that $25 was stolen from his trousers' pocket while he slept last night. The thief entered the house by raising a window in Mr. Neale's bedroom.

CONAN DOYLE IN AMERICA.

The Creator of "Sherlock Holmes" Told Some Good Stories While Here.

Not long before his departure for England, the Aldine Club in New York gave him a farewell dinner, where he made an offhand speech, a part of which is worth repeating here. He began by telling how, on his arrival in Boston, the cabman who drove him from the station refused to accept any fare, but politely asked for a ticket to the reading. Dr. Doyle expressed surprise that the cabman should have recognized him, and asked: "Tell me how you found out who I am, and you shall have tickets for your whole family and such clars as you smoke here in America besides." Whereupon, according to Dr. Doyle, the cabman answered:

"If you will excuse personal remarks, your coat lapels are badly twisted downward, where they have been grasped by the pertinacious New York reporters. Your hair has the Quakerish cut of a Philadelphia barber, and your hat, battered at the brim in front, shows where you have tightly grasped it, in the struggle to stand your ground at a Chicago literary luncheon. Your right overshoe has a large block of Buffalo mud just under the instep; the odor of a Utica cigar hangs about your clothing; and the overcoat itself shows the slovenly brushing of the porters of the through sleepers from Albany. The crumbs of doughnut on the top of your bag—pardon me, your luggage—could only have come there in Springfield; and stencilled upon the very end of the 'Wellington,' in fairly plain lettering, is the name 'Conan Doyle.'"

Somewhat more veracious than this anecdote is the story which Conan Doyle tells of an experience which he had when leaving school. His teacher must have been one of those noble old Romans, such as Thackeray describes as roaring at young Penderennis when the Major, his uncle, called to take the boy away. When Conan Doyle had finished his course in school, the head master called him aside, and, after eyeing him with ominous disfavor, spoke to him in measured tones as follows: "Doyle, I have known you now for seven years, and I know you thoroughly. I am going to say something which you will remember in after life. Doyle, you will never come to any good!"—December Bookman.

A Memorial Stone.

Upon the question of repairing a pavement at Swanage being raised, it was elicited at a meeting of the urban council that one of the stones was used by Judge Jeffreys for the Bloody Assize, several of the condemned prisoners being hanged on the gallows from the stone, which had been taken from its original position and placed in the pavement about fifty years ago. The council readily consented to hand it over to a gentleman who desired to restore the stone as near as possible to its original position, so that it might be preserved as a monument, not of Judge Jeffreys, it was explained, but of the "delightful times" in which some of our forefathers lived.—London Chronicle.

Shelters For Sleeping in the Open.

So great is the desire nowadays for an open-air life in the midst of a city that thousands of people in the suburbs of London, feeling the constraint of the four walls of an ordinary bedroom irksome, have put up shelters in their gardens or on the flat roofs, where they may sleep, as nearly as possible in their inclement climate, in the open air, says a writer in the Washington Times.

The good effects of this style of life are plainly apparent in the improved health and spirits of the tenants.

A fresh-air enthusiast has erected a simple garden bedroom which cost but a small sum. A space of 9 feet by 7 was marked upon the lawn and at the corners four posts were stuck into the ground. Upon these a roof of ordinary matchwood, having a slope of about two feet, was placed. Privacy requires "walls" on three sides, but a loose blind serves this purpose in the front. All that was needed to complete the edifice was a covering of tarred tarpaulin to keep out the rain, and a few boards, raised on loose bricks, to act as floor. The bed is placed at the back of the "room" and in such a chamber the tenant will sleep summer and winter. "Let anyone try it for a week," said the architect, "and he will never want another bedroom as long as he lives."

"The origin of this style of life was no doubt the fresh-air treatment for consumptives. You will never find that such people wish to return to the life of closed doors and windows," said a well-known specialist in tuberculosis. "They have a horror of such existence. They loath a shut window and revel in a draught."

"All members of my family sleep with the windows wide open, and as a result there are no headaches, no colds and no pale pasty faces. I have recommended the same idea to my patients and they have become so healthy that I cannot make money out of them."

FUNERAL RITES OF KING OSCAR

Late Monarch of Sweden Laid to Rest in Tomb

All Stockholm Wore Mourning and Solemnity Was Pronounced By Impressive Silence.

TEARS FLOWED VERY FREELY

Stockholm, Dec. 20.—Seldom if ever in its history has this city witnessed such a solemn ceremony as that which marked the funeral of the late King Oscar. Although the weather was bitterly cold, the entire population of Stockholm and thousands of visitors from the country stood bareheaded, silent and sorrowful along the line of the procession to catch a last glimpse of the casket containing all that remained of their beloved king. Traffic throughout the city and in the harbor had been prohibited since early morning and with the exception of tolling bells, an occasional hum of voices and the clash of arms as the soldiers lining the route of the funeral cortege took up their positions, hardly a sound could be heard. There was not even the clatter of horses' hoofs or the rumble of wheels to disturb the quiet solemnity of the occasion, the roadway from the palace to Riddarholm church, the burial place of the kings of Sweden, having been covered a foot deep with fir twigs. Every house along the route was draped from the ground to the eaves with crepe and even the color of the uniforms of the soldiers was denuded by this universal mark of mourning.

Half masted flags likewise were draped with crepe and streamers of the same sombre material hung across the streets at frequent intervals.

The funeral procession included some two thousand persons, among them being Gustave, the new king of Sweden; the king of Denmark, Swedish princes and princesses, ambassadors representing foreign monarchs, American Minister Graves as a special representative of President Roosevelt, was given the place of honor immediately following King Gustave.

As the funeral procession entered the church the organ and orchestra played Haydn's Magnificent Dirge and as the casket was carried up the grand aisle by a number of sailors, accompanied by the aides de camp of the late sovereign, every eye in the congregation was filled with tears. At the conclusion of the funeral march, the choir, accompanied by the organ and orchestra from the opera, recited two Lutheran songs. The funeral oration was delivered by the Bishop of Lund.

A salute of 42 guns were fired by the forts and ships in the harbor and volleys of muskets burst forth as the coffin was placed in the vault of the Bernadottes.

DOCTORS HAVE CANDIDATE.

Medics Booming Bonaparte for Presidential Nomination.

New York, Dec. 20.—The Tribune today says: An underground movement which has as its object the election of Attorney General Charles J. Bonaparte to the presidency of the United States is in progress. It has come up for breath in Chicago, Washington and Boston, and may be expected to appear briefly in New York and Indianapolis.

The campaign managers are physicians. They have their issue and they have selected Mr. Bonaparte as their candidate because he is known to favor their propositions. The issue is the "extermination of the criminal classes." The physicians propose to confine habitual criminals in "asylum prisons" for life.

Mr. Bonaparte, as he has made known in his speeches, would hang them. The physicians admit that the habitual criminals should be hanged, but they are afraid that the country is not ready for this.

The movement is being conducted by confidential correspondence from city to city, and is interesting on this account as well as because of its new national issue.

FOR POOR

SCHOOL CHILDREN TAKE CANDY, TOYS AND FOOD TO SCHOOL.

Superintendent Carnegie Will Entertain Football Players at Six O'Clock Dinner.

With appropriate Christmas programs this afternoon the city schools close until January 6, giving pupils and teachers a two weeks' vacation. The pupils took Christmas offerings for the poor that will be distributed by the Charity club. A majority took candies and toys to be given the poor children of the city.

Superintendent Carnegie and wife will entertain the members of the High school football team Tuesday evening with 6 o'clock dinner.

The superintendent will be in his office tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock to distribute the checks to the teachers for their December salaries. The school board will hold a special meeting this evening to allow the salaries.

High School Exercises.

An address by Superintendent Carnegie and several reading selections by Miss Elizabeth Graham added interest to the opening exercises at the High school this morning. Superintendent Carnegie spoke encouragingly of the work that had been done by the pupils during this term and paid a tribute to the ability of the teachers. The readings of Miss Graham were also very instructive and enjoyed by the pupils.

Superintendent Carnegie today sent the following Christmas communication to each room and department of the city schools:

Dear Teachers and Pupils: I want, at this time, to extend to you my appreciation of the kindly courtesies extended to me since I came to Paducah. It has been a source of the greatest pleasure to me to see our boys and girls so courteous and polite at all times.

At this joyful Christmas time, I desire to wish for all of you a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. I trust that our two weeks of vacation will be beautiful days, and that "you all" will enjoy them to the full, and may Santa fill your stockings full.

I hope that every one of you will be in his place promptly on Monday morning, January 6, 1908.

Very sincerely your friend,

J. A. CARNAGEY.

Christmas, 1907.
Mrs. Lena Ham, a popular teacher in the Log building, will entertain her pupils with a candy pulling next Friday.

SOME VERY LARGE FIGURES.

Many New Business Enterprises in the South.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Dec. 20.—In the list of new southern business enterprises reported in the Tradesman, the following are recorded for Tennessee: Memphis, $10,000 construction company and $30,000 elevator; Fayetteville, $15,000 cob-crushing plant; Dixon Spring, telephone company.

In the list from Oklahoma is a $1,000,000 navigation company, a $100,000 construction company and three oil companies with $100,000 each, beside a $200,000 medicine factory. From Texas are reported a variety of new concerns, among them a $300,000 machinery company a $150,000 lumber company and a $10,000 hardware company.

Among other large investments in the southern states during the week are a $300,000 mining company in Alabama; a $100,000 lumber company in Arkansas; a cotton mill in Georgia; a $300,000 coal and coke company and a $400,000 lumber company in Kentucky; a $100,000 oil company in Louisiana; several manufacturing companies in Missouri; a $100,000 cotton mill in North Carolina; a $500,000 investment company in Virginia, and a $100,000 brick and tile company in West Virginia.

ONE THIRD OFF ON COATS AND FURS

THIS Coat and Fur Sale of ours has certainly had its share of appreciation from the Christmas shoppers. The people of Paducah are demonstrating that they know values. And just bear in mind that after today you have only three more shopping days—then Christmas. Time to buy now; don't you think so?

We usually have this big sale in January, but this season we are giving you the best opportunity of its kind you ever had, as a sort of Christmas gift.

And by the way, gentlemen, a pretty fair sprinkling of men have been in, too. Good many of them many of them bought Coats and Furs for Christmas delivery. Men may not know very much about furs but they do know that if it comes from the Style Store its right.

NEEDLES NOT CAUSE DEATH.

Women Who Swallowed Them Is Dying From Effects of a Cold.

New York, Dec. 20.—Mrs. Mollie DeLeon, who, in a fit of desperation several months ago, attempted to take her own life by swallowing 144 needles, is dying in the Fordham hospital. But the needles are not directly responsible for her death. The last of twenty-four operations for the removal of the needles was performed on Sunday. That night she was taken with a severe case of coughing, and the wounds of the operation were opened, causing great loss of blood. The doctors hold out no hope for her recovery.

We are showing a great assortment of Xmas rugs; some beauties at $1, $2.50 and $3.50.

WILLSON HOPES

TO HAVE STATE REDISTRICTED ON NON-PARTISAN LINES.

Will Invite Two of Each Party From Every District to Confer With Him.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 20.—Governor Willson is telling friends of the plan by which he hopes to obtain some legislative redistricting from the incoming legislature.

It is now understood that the governor hopes to put the redistricting schemes which he entertains upon a bi-partisan basis, and to the end that a bill may be drawn which will prove satisfactory, he hopes, to the Democrats as well as Republicans, he proposes to invite two Democrats and two Republicans from each congressional district in the state to hold a conference here at some early date, when the matter can be considered and a bill drawn. At the same time another conference of Democrats and Republicans may be called by the governor for considering what the Republicans term non-partisan control for the state's charitable and penal institutions, and a bill to place them under such management.

TURKEY MARKET BOOMS.

Thousands of the Savory Fowls Are Shipped From Clarksville.

Clarksville, Tenn., Dec. 20.—The turkey market has been very active in Clarksville. Few people realize to what extent the poultry business has grown during the past few years and thousands of fowls are brought here weekly to help supply the eastern markets. Turkeys are more plentiful than usual this year and as a result, together with a falling off in the demand for this fowl for the Christmas dinner due probably to the financial condition of the country the price has declined, nine cents per pound being paid, whereas it was eleven cents last Thanksgiving. Last week 5,000 turkeys were shipped to the eastern markets. This was the banner week of the year. This week over 2,000 will be shipped away, the last shipment before Christmas being made yesterday. The industry puts into circulation among our farmers thousands annually.

Makes Priests Do a Slide.
Alton, Ill., Dec. 20.—Twenty-five Catholic priests slid down a patent chute fire escape at the Catholic orphanage at the order of Bishop Ryan. The priests assembled at the bishop's residence and were escorted by their superior to the remodeled orphanage. The bishop then instructed them to enter the building and slide through the chute. He stationed himself at the bottom. The twenty-five made the slide in safety and the prelate expressed himself satisfied with the test. Bishop Ryan did not personally try the escape.

DR. BELL'S PINE TAR HONEY

CURES COUGHS

...OVER 4,000,000 BOTTLES OF...

Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey

Were sold during the year 1904, on an absolute guarantee. Out of this vast number of sales money was refunded on only six bottles. This proportion—6 out of 4,000,000—is so exceedingly small that it hardly makes a ripple in the solid phalanx of satisfied customers. This is the unprecedented record of the most wonderful cough medicine on the market.

CAN CONVICT THE NIGHT RIDERS

Fire Marshal Says He Has Ample Evidence

Special Terms of Court in Two Counties Will Be Asked By the Adjutant General.

WRITTEN REPORTS TO COME.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 20.—Adj. Gen. Philip P. Johnston, who has been in western Kentucky making an investigation into the outrages committed in connection with the tobacco war in Hopkinsville and other points in that section of the state, is now engaged in making out a written report of his findings, which he will submit to Governor Willson.

General Johnston held a conference with Governor Willson shortly after his arrival in Frankfort, and made a verbal report of his investigation in Christian and Trigg counties, after which he began on his written report, which will be finished and handed to the governor tomorrow. Governor Willson said that as he had not yet received the adjutant general's report he was unable to say just what it would contain except in a brief way, and would, therefore, not give out any statement as to the findings and recommendations of General Johnston until he had received and studied the report.

Trigg Demoralized.

It is said the report of the adjutant general will contain practically the same characters of evidences of demoralization in Trigg county as was found by him and reported to the governor in connection with the situation in Christian county, and it is likely that a special term of court will be called in each of the counties in order that the evidence secured by General Johnston can be submitted to a grand jury.

Mott Ayres, state fire marshal, who has been in the dark tobacco belt with General Johnston, also held a short conference with Governor Willson, and made him acquainted with the facts and information obtained by him in connection with the investigation. Mr. Ayres said that he was in possession of an abundance of evidence on which to convict at least a part of the men who engaged in the raid and destruction of property in Hopkinsville, but that nothing could be done until a special grand jury was empaneled to hear the evidence.

Governor Hopeful.

Governor Willson grows more sanguine daily that the conference of all the parties interested in the tobacco war, will result in great good, and firmly believes that after the result of that conference is made known the conditions throughout the tobacco districts of the state will again become normal and that no further efforts will be made by citizens to destroy life and property.

Governor Willson has received several hundred letters from various sections of the state since he assumed the duties of his office, acquainting him with facts in connection with the war being waged by the farmers for better prices, and also furnishing him with information on which it will be an easy matter to secure convictions of the "night riders" when the proper time comes and the proper steps have been taken by the authorities. To each of these letters the governor is paying strict attention, and at the same time treating them confidentially and answering them personally and thanking the authors for the interest taken by them and for their help in assisting him in putting a stop to the war.

New Reward Offered.

In order that there would be no confusion or argument by anyone over rewards offered for the apprehension and conviction of the party or parties guilty of the outrages in the tobacco belt, Governor Willson today revoked the general reward offered by Governor Beckham last April for the arrest and conviction of barn burners in the state, and today he substituted one for $500 reward for the arrest and conviction of the party or parties who attempted to destroy a tobacco warehouse at Murray, Calloway county, on November 28, 1907. This reward, it is said, will be followed by another for a similar amount for the arrest and conviction of those guilty of the destruction of property in Hopkinsville two weeks ago.

New Judge Appointed.

Governor Willson accepted the resignation of Attorney General-elect James Breathitt as county judge of Christian county, and appointed Charles O. Prowse as his successor.

Will Write 1,000 Words a Minute.

The automatic typewriter which will write 1,000 words a minute!

This marvelous invention has not been put on exhibition yet, but it has been duly patented at Washington. The claims made for this machine are truly wonderful, if they can be fulfilled. It is said that a business man will be able to dictate his correspondence into a device like the phonograph and then go home, leaving the typewriter to carry on the work in his absence. The machine will dictate the letters and address the envelopes. When the dictation record is complete it will automatically stop work. Electricity is the motive power.

It is also claimed for this machine that it will make a number of copies of a letter with different names and addresses, and likewise add the signature of the writer if this is desired. But it must be remembered that the machine, though patented, has not been shown in operation.

A Sugar Jag.

"When a cargo of sugar reaches port, the hatches are always lifted and the hold aired two hours before the stevedores are allowed to enter," said a W. C. T. U. woman.

"This is right," she went on sternly. "Otherwise these men would get on a jag, a sugar jag. The air of the hold, filled with the gases rising from the sugar, would glaze their eyes, cause them to stagger, cause them to ring and shout, to want to fight, to smoke and to make love."

"I have seen stevedores, rotously unloading a cargo of sugar, as drunk from the fumes as though they had each put away nineteen glasses of dark beer," Philadelphia Bulletin.

Finger Ring Watches.

Swiss watchmakers are reported to be busy filling English and American orders for finger ring watches. The ring watch, though little seen, is no novelty. The manager of an old London watch-making firm says that he saw them more than fourteen years ago. Queen Victoria had three or four. The simplest ones—a plain gold ring with the watch inserted—costs about $100, but with diamonds or other stones, $5,000 to $10,000 may be paid for them.

Honest poverty ranks as high with some people as dishonest wealth does with some others.

Where He Got His Paper.

"I saw another stinky man today," remarked an observer. "You know these waste paper boxes on the street? Well, a good many people throw newspapers into them after they have read them. Sometimes they will buy one of the boxes after they buy a later edition. The stinky man I refer to must have found out that there are often papers in these boxes not a day old. A while ago I saw him first glance about 10,000 if anybody was looking at him, then push back the lid of the box and reach in for a paper. As soon as he found one up to date he took it along. He would rather get it that way than spend a penny with a newsboy."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

COL. HENRY

RESIGNS IN HUFF BECAUSE OF SLIGHT PUT UPON HIM.

Commander of the Third Regiment Thinks He Has Been Overlooked By State Military Authorities.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Dec. 20.—Col. Jouett Henry, commanding the Third Infantry, Kentucky state guard, has tendered his resignation as an officer of the regiment.

Colonel Henry feels that he has been discriminated against and that his loyalty and capacity have been reflected upon by the course of Governor Willson and Adjutant General

Johnston in reference to the military situation in Hopkinsville growing out of the recent night rider outrages.

Colonel Henry states in his letter addressed to the adjutant general that if his twenty-five years of service in the state guard entitled him to any consideration, it had been denied him. He cites in his resignation that troops had been sent into his territory and that the commanding officer of the First Infantry, his junior in point of service, had been sent, by executive orders, to Colonel Henry's headquarters, to investigate conditions.

HANGING OF STOCKING.

It is told that ages ago the hanging of stockings over the Yuletide log in the big chimney place originated in Scandinavia, says a writer in What to Eat.

The story has it that a maiden fair sat one Christmas eve beside the chimney place wishing for enough "sheen cloth" to fashion into her wedding gown. Her glances straying over the yule log placed for the great lighting at the full flow of the yuletide, the maiden sat, silently wishing, while the sun went out and the somberness of night filled the room.

Suddenly, down the chimney came a glimmering spirit of the forest, and while standing with all the grace of a court grandee on the yule log, he softly sang:

"Wishing, wishing, in the yule log's name—

Keep wishing thy stocking full,

Answer will come o'er the yule log's flame

—Keep wishing thy stocking full."

The legend has it that when the maiden leaned forward the better to behold the spirit, he disappeared up the chimney as fantastically and unaccountably as he had come down.

Although the maiden was adrift with wonder and fear—she did not forget the admonition to "wish her stocking full." In somberness of the room she took the slipper and stocking from her right and from her left foot. She hung the stockings on the chimney place, over the yule log. Then—doubtless blushing furiously over her boldness—she fled from the room, hoping and wishing for enough "sheen cloth" to fashion into her wedding gown. She fled from the room, quite afraid of the forest sprite, still trembling trusting him, to serve as "father to her wish," and fetch the cloth to the chimney place before Christmas dawn.

In the very early Christmas dawn the maiden fair returned to the chimney place—and sure enough both stockings were full of a silken fabric, quite enough to fashion into her wedding gown.

So, unto this day, the stockings are hung on Christmas eve, where the most generous spirit of them all—the only original Kris—many discover them in mute appeal ready for his gift.

It must be told that the custom became more modest as generation succeeded generation, until now only one stocking was hung for the "wishing full."

MAYFIELD.

The home of Joe Hamlett was entered by some unknown party Tuesday night and $2.65 stolen from the pants pockets of his son, Charley Westbrook. Entrance was gained through a window and footprints were seen on the ground which caused them to think that it was the act of a woman. The boy Tuesday sold some corn and received $57 and it is presumed that some party who knew he had the money committed the theft. Luckily he had given the money, all except the amount stolen, to his mother.

Col. Thad Ferrell and grandson, Glennie Draffen, arrived from Paducah. Mr. Ferrell had been down to visit his daughter and was accompanied by his grandson.

Garb for Grooms. Not long ago a large clothing house in New York received a letter from the remote southwest to this effect:

"What is the proper dress for a groom in the afternoon?"

The clerk who opened the mail referred the inquiry to the lively department, and the head of that department dictated a brief reply:

"Bottle green coat, fawn-colored trousers, with top boots, silk hat and cockade. We can make you prices." In about a week came a plaintive note:

"I always knew it was expensive to get married, but can't you suggest something a little less elaborate?" Exchange.

Remedy For Every Disease.

Every disease has its remedy, and in the search for that remedy hundreds of cults of medicine have sprung up. One man pins his faith to minute doses of powerful drugs; another walks barefoot over wet grass; another eats raw fruit and grain; one is confident that mud baths influence health, and still another urges us to chew each mouthful of food at least thirty times before swallowing. No doubt everyone of these "cures" is of benefit to some form of disease. The mistake of followers of the treatments is in thinking their particular remedy a cure for all every malady. There are no universal remedies. Indeed, every type of disease must receive special attention and be treated after the fashion long experience and study have taught the medical profession is best adapted to the case. Certain pills respond quickly to drugs, the virtues of which are sometimes wonderfully effective; others need nothing but fresh air; still others a change of climate, and a variety of diseases need no drugs and no journeys to the mountains, but are best relieved by simple dieting. And just as the variety of drug preparations is almost beyond the power of the maker to recall, and is daily being increased by the chemist in pharmacy, so a great variety of remedies has been brought out that cannot be considered as drugs, but which still possess singular curative properties.—Leslie's Weekly.

Indians in the Senate.

The appearance in the United States Senate of two men of Indian blood is one to give us pause and reflect upon the history of the aborigines. The civilized tribes of the Indian Territory have almost a century of civil experience behind them, and they may manage to do pretty well. And it is of interest that the admission of Oklahoma completes civil reconstruction, for the Indians joined the confederacy and expected to become an important state when their side won.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Bullet in Brain, But Alive.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Minns a considerable portion of his brain and with a large hole in his skull, Harry B. Teetsel, who was shot by two highwaymen at First and Alameda streets, has amazed the surgeons in charge of the case, not only by recovering consciousness but by reaching practically a stage of convalescence.

If a man spends his money freely, there will be mighty few questions asked as to how he got it.

Bridge Has Its Foibles and Little Deceptions Like All Other Pastimes.

If there is anything calculated to hasten the approaching decline of bridge as a social favorite it is the increase in the number of players who indulge in practices which are distinctly unfair.

In a man's club they have not only the power, but also the will to put a stop to anything of this kind. Of course they do it nicely and without any fuss.

A member notices something suspicious and speaks of it quietly to a friend. The latter watches and confirms the fears of the first. Then a third is taken into their confidence, and finally they bring the matter to the attention of one of the board of governors in a tentative way, as if it were perhaps all a mistake, but curious.

After a little investigation one of the club servants is quietly directed to tell Mr. So-and-so the next time he comes to the door that his resignation has been accepted and that he is no longer a member. Unless he is very dense he takes the hint and departs. A college professor who thought he could brazen it out and would not take his medicine quietly insisted on facing his accusers, with the result that what was merely a suspicion was proved beyond a question, and instead of his being able to continue his professional duties, minus his club membership, he wound up as a waiter in a Bowery restaurant.

But you cannot regulate things that way among women. While women are very ready to talk and to compare notes and even to name people, they are never willing to make charges to a committee.

It was not more than a year ago that a woman's club caught one of its members red handed with a pocket-book that she had taken from a card table at which she was playing a moment before. Did they do anything? Oh, no. Of course it was all a mistake, they said, even though the same woman had been under suspicion of crooked practices for months.

She is still a member of that club in good standing; watched of course, and talked about, but never openly denounced or asked to resign.

There seems to be something in the game of bridge more than in other games that tends to sap the moral sensibilities. Strange to say, playing bridge for money does not seem to excite the cupidity of women half so much as playing for a prize. The things that otherwise respectable and highly moral women will stoop to for the sake of winning a prize in a bridge tournament are simply astounding.

Favorite Tricks.

One of the favorite tricks, when the game is pivot bridge is for four friends to arrange their own table and agree that they will double and redouble everything, no matter what the declaration may be, so that at least one person at the table shall have a tremendous score. The result is practically the same as if the trick values were 8, 16, 24, 32, and 48, instead of the ordinary series of 2, 4, 6, 8 and 12.

In a recent game at which the play lasted only two hours the winner unblushingly presented a card which showed she was more than 14,000 points plus. In order to even things up among themselves the same four will go to another party, at which some other member of the quartet will make top score.

When there are not enough to make up a table two playing as partners will frequently take advantage of their opponents in ways against which there is really no defense. While one deals the cards her partner picks up her hand as fast as the cards are given to her, and almost before the dealer has time to sort her hand dummy asks sweetly:

"Did you leave it to me, dear?"

"Yes, dear."

"No trumps."

If the question is not asked but the cards are held in the hand dummy is not anxious to make it, but has a trick or two. If the dummy lays down her cards there is nothing in them.

Dummy can do a great many unfair things to which it is difficult to take exception because of the ready excuse that the player was mistaken, that is all. But some things are beyond detection even.

When it was the rule to take a trick for a lead out of the wrong hand many women were in the habit of arranging some little private signal, such as putting both hands to the hat, to warn the dealer that she was about to lead out of the wrong hand and lose a trick.

Common Practice.

A very common practice is for dummy to overlook the adversaries' hand, especially the one on the dealer's right, and then when it comes to a question of a doubtful finesse, or a deep one, dummy can slightly arrange the cards so that the first one touched is the correct one to play. Sometimes they boldly push the card forward, if it is simply an ace-queen finesse, asking meekly:

"Did you say this one, dear?"

If some one insists that the suggestion by dummy of the play of a card entitles the adversaries to prevent its play of course she says she did not suggest anything, but thought her partner asked her to play that card. If it was a man there would be a row; but what are you going to do with a woman in such a case? When a player has no partner that is in her confidence there are still many little ways in which she can help herself. A very common practice is shuffling the cards before cutting for partners in such a way that the third or fourth card from either end shall be an ace, which will give the player drawing it the first deal of the rubber. As this is supposed to be worth odds of 10 to 9 at least it helps a bit.

Another common practice which was actually taught to pupils by a certain bridge teacher is to press hard on the pack when spreading it, because that usually makes the cards with less ink on them slip more easily than the others. The result is that the spread pack will have a number of breaks in it, and those cards which have slipped far past the ones below are usually cards of low denomination. A knowledge of this fact enables persons to get the first deal and also to get together as partners.

Probably one of the most audacious methods of cheating, for it can be called by no lighter name, is that adopted by a woman, erroneous cancellation of scores.

Score Keeper.

It is a common practice with some score keepers to cancel equal sums during the progress of the game so as to reduce the labor of adding up at the end. If one side has an item of 36 scored it can be canceled if items of 18, 12 and 6 are simultaneously canceled on the other side.

A little error such as canceling six too much, or too little will hardly ever be noticed, especially when previous cancellations have been made; and if it is it is easy to smile sweetly and thank you so much for pointing it out, and how careless of me, etc. But the steady advantage of from twelve to thirty points picked up on every rubber of any length is something that no one can stand against.

Another extremely daring piece of cheating, which cannot be tried more than once in an evening, however, is to break a card during the play of a hand and then claim a new deal. Under the rules if a pack is found to be incomplete or imperfect and the imperfection is discovered during the play of a hand that deal is void. An imperfect pack is one in which there are duplicate or missing cards, or cards so torn or marked that they can be identified by the backs.

When dummy has declared no trumps and lays down a hundred aces and it looks as if the dealer were about to make a grand stand, it is about time to mutilate one corner of a card and then show it and insist that the pack is imperfect, and that there must be a new deal with another pack. A matter of 224 points is worth saving.

In addition to all this there are, of course many private conventions and signals with the cards which have been previously agreed upon between partners. These absolutely defy detection unless the play can be closely watched for a large number of games and even then the evidence would be very doubtful.

It is bad enough for people to study out such methods themselves, but when bridge teachers instruct their pupils to use such tricks as rofary discards and double entendre echos, bridge is in a pretty bad way. No wonder people are taking up skat. —New York Sun.

A Capital of Fashion.

It is the Parisian's love of beauty that constitutes his chief claim to leadership. Beautiful clothes are only one expression of love for the beautiful, and until we in greater number develop this love and strive to interpret it in every form, dress included, we cannot hope to rival the French.

The now so general buying of French models is the best possible proof of French influence on American dress. And even though the present agitation against the too frequent reproduction of French models has justly excited much adverse feeling, the French model shows no sign of lessening its vogue. It is possible that the Frenchmen may be more particular about turning out duplicates, and that the Americans who buy will apply their originality to improving their French purchases by means of changes that will make the gowns different. This is the view of the Delineator staff in Paris, and surely their united opinion is of value.—The Delineator.

Not Quite the Same.

A country clergyman vouches for the truth of this story. Having arrived at that point in the baptismal service where the infant's name is conferred, he said: "Name this child."

"Original Story," said the sponsor nurse.

"What do you say?" he asked in surprise.

"Original Story," she repeated in clear, deliberate tones.

"It's a very odd name, isn't it? Are you sure you want him called by the name of Original Story?"

"Original Story—that's right."

"Is it a family name?" the minister persisted.

"Named after his uncle, sir," explained the nurse.

And so as Original Story the little fellow was christened. Some weeks after this event the minister made the acquaintance of the said uncle—a farm laborer in another village—whose name was Reginald Story.—The Tatler.

"Hey, wa't?" cried the first boy, "ain't yer vaccination heated up yet?"

"Naw," replied the other.

"Huh! don't it make yer mad?"

THEATRICAL NOTES

Leo B. Mordaunt, in "Little Johnny Jones."

Ma's New Husband.

Messrs. Scott and Raynor, whose new musical farce, "Ma's New Husband," will be seen for the first time in this city next Saturday evening at The Kentucky, claims to be carrying away honors this season in the "laughing world." "Ma's New Husband" affords delightful entertainment to old and young.

"Little Johnny Jones."

A musical attraction of exceptional merit and one that has already made a metropolitan reputation in the leading theatres of the country is "Little Johnny Jones," which may be seen at The Kentucky Dec. 24. No musical play produced for many seasons past has been so widely talked about and no music has been more widely sung or is more familiar to every household in the country than the delightful melodies of "Little Johnny Jones." Amy Leslie, one of the most famous writers on stage events in the country, in her review of the performance in the Chicago Daily News, finds occasion in her column review of the performance to remark: "The play itself redounds tremendously to the credit of so young and busy an author as Mr. Cohan. It reflects much but copies nothing except as a kindly burlesque or candidly given reminiscence. It is kindled with the spirit of harmless clean frolic and has a story which reads well, simply as a neat report so concise and intelligent it is. Such a novelty as intelligence either called for or expressed in musical comedy is a departure and the smart little romance, the comedy drama and the plot, have lots of backbone and charm. Wit, sharp, modern, new and agreeable adorns the briefest scene and song, and the music which is likewise the work of this talented young author is so tuneful and simple, so fetching and jaunty that every tune of it crops up at will almost complete as a whistley memory."

OLDEST JUDGE

IN AMERICA RESIDES IN MASSACHUSETTS TOWN.

At Age of Ninety-Three He Still Disposes Justice in Able Manner.

In the tiny town of Athol, Mass., lives the oldest justice in this country. Although Judge Charles Field is in his ninety-third year, he sits regularly in the First district court of northern Worcester county, holding sometimes as many as five sessions a week in Athol and Gardner. He has two assistants to share his labors, but he does not tuck his share of the work onto them.

There is no reason why he should not regularly attend to the work he loves best, for he can read a law book, a legal document, or a newspaper without glasses, and his hearing is only slightly affected. His voice is thin, and he never was a robust looking man, but his mind is as clear and his memory as tenacious as it was fifty years ago.

In many ways Justice Field has claims for distinction. He is the oldest lawyer practicing at the Massachusetts bar, and is vice-president of the Western Massachusetts Bar association. He once was a presidential elector, and is the only living member of the Massachusetts body who voted directly for Lincoln for president and for Hamlin for vice-president.

His life spans the entire history of the United States since the final struggle with the mother country. For nearly eighty years he has witnessed America's marvelous development. He has watched the growth of the railroad, of steam navigation, of the telegraph, the telephone, photography, the cotton gin, the sewing machine, the breech-loading gun, the submarine boat, the automobile, and the airship. When he was but nine days old the battle of Waterloo was fought and his natal year was also the year of the close of the war of 1812.

He went west seventy years ago, long before Horace Greeley gave his famous advice to young men. He knew Abraham Lincoln when Lincoln was only a struggling young lawyer, and he heard several of his speeches in 1840. He is one of the few living men who knew the martyred president so early in his career.

He cast his first presidential vote in 1836 for William Henry Harrison, and has voted for every whig and republican presidential candidate since. He was on the stump in Illinois for Harrison in the celebrated "hard cider" campaign in 1840.

When he went west in 1837 he was three weeks making the journey from Troy to St. Louis. The only railroad in the whole journey was from Perth Amboy to Camden, N. J. The rest of the way was by stages and boats. From Pittsburg the route was by flatboat down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. "We went aground every day," says Judge Field, "and remained hung up for many hours."

Judge Field can recall going from Athol to Boston eighty-two years ago, when the start was made by stage early in the morning and Boston was not reached until late at night.

He was a veteran in western experience when the fever of '49 started, and had been practicing law there eight years when the gold fever was rushing men to California.

Although he was 70 years old when appointed to the bench, he has been steadily in active service there for twenty-three years. Before that time he was regularly practicing law, and in fact has been connected with the law in some way for seventy-five years.—New York Press.

IS NEW STATE TOO "FRESH?"

Oklahoma Already Has a Candidate For the Presidency.

Having secured a place in the limelight, says the Baltimore Sun, Oklahoma is resolutely bent upon holding it. The state, but a few days old, has already developed a "favorite-son" candidate for the presidency. This shows that the youngest member of the family of states is not lacking in "cheek" and assurance. The game of national politics is not always fruitful of surprises. The expected often happens, and we can scarcely conceive that if the unexpected should happen in 1908 Oklahoma would carry off the honors. Nevertheless, Oklahoma may produce a president some day if Ohio and New York ever consent to give the other states a chance. But the infant Oklahoma ought to be a little more modest and a little less pushing, in view of the fact that there are states which were among the thirteen colonies that have not yet had a "favorite son" in the white house.

Tricks of the Sham Paralytic.

Paralysis is often imitated by beggars, and so closely that there is no detecting the imposition. A fellow is directed how to hang his wrist loosely down, dropping the fingers of one hand, and to drag the limbs in such a manner as to imitate a paralytic strike to the life. He is drilled up to the proper business mark by marching him round the beggar's kitchen for hours at a stretch, and night after night. This is continued until the patient can bear a sudden and unexpected prick with a needle or even the touch of a red-hot-iron, without relapsing into "his normal attitude."

Not many years ago one of these mock paralytics, who was accustomed to throw off his seemingly infirmity and play the burglar by way of change, was caught in the very act of breaking into a house and committed for trial. Here he got up such a semblance of hopeless paralysis as deceived everybody. When the trial came on he was carried into the court on a stretcher, and laid at full length in the dock. Everybody, including the judge and jury, commiserated the case, and he escaped with one year's imprisonment.

The doctor of the prison to which the convict was next transferred felt sure that the whole thing was a sham and tried all the ordinary methods of detection, including liberal use of the galvanic battery, but without effect. At length a great heap of damp straw was collected in the jail yard and the scoundrel, still stretched on his pallet, which he never quitted, was placed thereon. The straw was fired on all sides, throwing out a little flame and dense volumes of choking smoke. This did the business, and quickly, too. In less than a minute the paralytic astonished everybody but the doctor by bouncing out of the straw with the agility of a deer.—Exchange.

CHILDREN'S

Favorite tonic is White's Cream Vermifuge, the cure for worms and all children's diseases. It not only kills the worms, but removes the mucous and slime in which they outfit their nests. Its action on the child is mild and leaves him in a healthy condition. Joe Daniel, Sumner, Tenn., says that he gave one of his children White's Cream Vermifuge when the doctor thought it had colic, and from the first dose the child passed 73 worms. Sold by J. H. Gehlischlaeger, Lang Bros. and C. O. Ripley.

TRAINING TO OUTDO WESTON.

Five Boys Walk Ninety Miles in Twenty-five Hours, Beating Stunt of a Year Ago.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Five boys from the High School of Commerce of New York arrived here yesterday, having walked ninety miles in exactly twenty-five hours. Although they deny trying to beat the record of Edward P. Weston, the 60-year-old pedestrian who has just finished a trip from Portland, Me., to Chicago, it is evident that they were not averse to the reputation of being in the Weston class, having beaten their own record of last year by five hours.

The youthful plodders are Harry Tarrantous, Walter Goepel, Harry Rieper, Harry Stern and Willard Groff. They belong to a school organization called the Strollers' club. One of the qualifications for membership is that the applicant must have accomplished the feat of walking 100 miles or more in three weeks.

I was going to give Jinks a little friendly advice this morning. And didn't you? No; he started to tell me how to run my affairs and that's something I tolerate from no man.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

To Mother Goose.

The skies are gray;
The chill winds blow;
Such signs would say
That it should snow.

Old Mother Goose
Up in the sky,
Shakes feathers loose
And lets them fly!

The flake's will fall,
So soft and white,
And children all
Fill with delight.

Our sleds are new,
Our spirits high;
Old Mother do
Make feathers fly!

From morn to night
We'll sled and slide,
A great snow fight
We'll have beside!

Snow forts we'll build,
And fine snowmen,
The days are filled
With joys then.

So, Mother Goose,
'Tis time to shake
Your feathers loose
For playtime's sake!

FACE CAR FAMINE IS LATE REPORT

Northwest May Be Up Against Same Old Trouble

Members of Interstate Commerce Commission Returns From Trip Through That Section.

WHAT DEPARTMENT HAS FOUND.

Washington, Dec. 20.—Is the country face to face once more with a car famine? Are the conditions that tied up the northwest last winter to rule again? This is a subject that is worrying the administration. Franklin K. Lane, a member of the interstate commerce commission, recently made a trip through the west and middle west to look over the ground. He returned with his apprehension somewhat allayed, but recent reports have served to renew his fears.

The report of the internal commerce of the country during October, just issued by the department of commerce and labor, throws a significant sidelight on the problem. The report says:

"The number of cars handled during the month by 38 reporting car associations, $3,595,790, was seven per cent larger than the number handled in October, 1904, although even the larger car supply did not prevent accumulation and delay of traffic at important centers. The inability of the railroads to move all traffic offered is best illustrated by the decision of certain trunk lines to discontinue temporarily the making of contracts with western shippers for the transportation of grain from the lakes to the Atlantic seaboard."

During the month the congestion was least felt along the Great Lakes, where the traffic, 11,820,000 net tons, was greater than any month during the season, except August, and exceeded by 28 per cent, the total of freight carried in October of last year.

With their fleets of steamers developing rapidly, the lakes are being resorted to as a means for relieving the pressure of the railroads. They are providing the salvation of the northwest.

The solution of the traffic question, which is becoming a most serious one, to be found in a scientific development of the rivers of the country. This is the opinion of practically every public man. President Roosevelt's belief in it is well known. He is supported by students of economic conditions in every walk of life.

In order to push forward this work of improvement, the government can not spend less than $50,000,000 a year. To spend less will mean that the Panama Canal will be finished before the rivers and harbors of the country are in condition to share in the increase of commerce that the opening of the big ditch will bring about. There is now a vast amount of work, approved by the government engineers and awaiting only the funds necessary for its undertaking. This work contemplates the expenditure of upwards of $50,000,000. At a year's expenditure of $50,000,000 spread over ten years this can be cared for.

Badly Mixed Up.
Abraham Brown, of Winterton, N. Y., had a very remarkable experience. He says: "Doctors got badly mixed up over me; one said heart disease; two called it kidney trouble; the fourth, blood poison and the fifth stomach and liver trouble; but none of them helped me; so my wife advised trying Electric Bitters, which are restoring me to perfect health. One bottle did me more good than all the five doctors prescribed." Guaranteed for blood poison, weakness and all stomach, liver and kidney complaints, by all druggists, 50c.

One arm of the service has been made famous by a Schley, and the other arm is now represented by that Admiral's son, Capt. Thomas Franklin Schley, who is with his regiment, the Twenty-third infantry, at Madison barracks, N. Y. Captain Schley has been in the army for twenty-three years, seven of which was as an enlisted man in the signal corps, while all of his service as a commissioned officer has been with the Twenty-third infantry since 1891.

Lieutenant Chaffee.
Under the new organization the second chief of staff, Adna R. Chaffee, now a lieutenant-general, retired, has a son and namesake a second lieutenant of the Fifteenth cavalry, and now at Havana with the Cuban army of pacification. Lieutenant Chaffee was one of the youngest men of his class at West Point which graduated in 1902.

While the fathers of the foregoing fought on the union side in the civil war, there are many whose fathers fought for the confederacy, and among them the most prominent are the Lees. There are two representatives of this distinguished Virginia family now in the army—two brothers.

Five years afterward he was appointed a first lieutenant in the same regiment, but, meanwhile he held the rank of lieutenant-colonel, being aid to General Sheridan, from March 17, 1873, to June 1, 1881. In October of that year he resigned from the regular service.

The outbreak of the war with Spain found him colonel of the Fourteenth New York infantry, and this was the stepping stone for his re-entry into the regular army, for twenty-five days afterward he was appointed a brigadier-general of volunteers, which commission he held until he again entered the permanent establishment in February, 1901. He was appointed a major-general Feb. 5, 1906, and it is puzzling to many whether he will, before his compulsory retirement in 1914, reach the top of the military ladder, as did his illustrious father.

The name of Ulysses S. Grant is perpetuated in the army by his grandson, Ulysses S. III., and the son of Gen. Fred D. Grant. This, the youngest of all the Grants now in the service, is a lieutenant of engineers and was a "star" graduate at West Point in 1901, which gave him his own selection as to the arm of service he desired to enter. It is a strange coincidence that patriotism should follow both father and son so strongly all through life, for each was born on a national holiday, the father May 30 and the son July 4.

Two Sheridans illumine the roll of officers—Michael V., a brother of the gallant "Little Phil," and now on the retired list as a brigadier-general, and the son and namesake, Philip Henry, who resembles his brave father, not only in physique, but in force of character. Young Sheridan is now a lieutenant of the Fifth cavalry, and is now assistant to Col. Charles S. Bromwell, superintendent of public buildings. He is also a West Pointer.

The names of Sherman and Miles are now combined in the American army by Sherman Miles, a second lieutenant of the Eleventh cavalry. He is the son of Gen. Nelson A. Miles, and gets his Christian name from the maternal side of the family—his mother being a daughter of Judge Sherman, who was a brother of John and Tecumseh Sherman.

One arm of the service has been made famous by a Schley, and the other arm is now represented by that Admiral's son, Capt. Thomas Franklin Schley, who is with his regiment, the Twenty-third infantry, at Madison barracks, N. Y. Captain Schley has been in the army for twenty-three years, seven of which was as an enlisted man in the signal corps, while all of his service as a commissioned officer has been with the Twenty-third infantry since 1891.

A Bold Step.

To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret, medicinal compounds, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago, decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of put-up medicines for domestic use, and so has published broad-sheets and openly to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicines. Thus he has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has removed his medicines from among secret nostrums of doubtful merits, and made them remedies of known composition.

By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulas are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the fullest scrutiny. Not only does the upper of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomach, torpid liver or biliousness and all catarrhal diseases, wherever located, have printed upon it, in plain English, a full and complete list of all the ingredients comprising it, but a small book has been compiled from numerous standard medical works, of all the different kinds of diseases, ailments, very numerous extracts from the writings of leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's medicines. One of these little books will be mailed free to any one sending a postal card, addressed by letter, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same. From this little book it will be learned that Dr. Pierce's medicines contain no alcohol, narcotics, mineral agents or other poisons or injurious agents, and that they are made from native, medicinal roots of great value; also that some of the most valuable ingredients contained in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak, nervous, over-worked, "run-down" nervous and delicate women, were enjoyed, some twenty years ago, by the Indians for similar ailments affecting their squaws. In fact, one of the most valuable medicinal plants, the uses of not a few of our most valuable native medicinal plants was gained from the Indians. As a matter of fact, the medicines, as propolis, antiseptic and retentive, overcoming painful periods, toning up the nerves and bringing about a perfect state of health. Sold by all druggists in medicines.

The Names of Grant and Lee of Sheridan and Longstreet, of Miles and Pickett and Others.

HEIRS OF THE BLUE AND GRAY.

In nearly every arm of the service, says the Washington Star, in nearly every regiment of cavalry or infantry may be seen a name which has helped to make American history brilliant. Perhaps the most prominent of these sons is Frederick Dent Grant, now a major-general, and commanding the big Department of the East of the Atlantic division, with headquarters at Governor's Island, New York City. "Fred" Grant, as he is familiarly known, was born in Missouri, his father being stationed at St. Louis, in 1850, just after his return from gallant service on the Mexican border, especially at Chapultepec. The present General Grant is also a West Pointer, and was at the military academy from 1866 to 1871, when he was appointed a second lieutenant of cavalry and assigned to the Fourth regiment.

Five years afterward he was appointed a first lieutenant in the same regiment, but, meanwhile he held the rank of lieutenant-colonel, being aid to General Sheridan, from March 17, 1873, to June 1, 1881. In October of that year he resigned from the regular service.

ers+sons of the late Gen. Fitzhugh Lee and grandsons of Robert E. Lee. General Lee's son and namesake, Fitzhugh, Jr., is also cavalry officer. During the war with Spain he served as first lieutenant of engineers (volunteers), and upon his honorable discharge was commissioned a second lieutenant of infantry, but as all the Lees are horsemen, he was transferred to the First cavalry, and after two years' service with that regiment was promoted and assigned to the Twelfth cavalry.

His brother, George Mason Lee, began his volunteer services as a lieutenant in the Thirty-ninth volunteers, and has seen service in the Philippines. Upon the muster out of that regiment he entered the regular service as a second lieutenant of the Seventh cavalry, and after two years of duty was promoted to first lieutenant in the Fourth cavalry and transferred to the Seventh cavalry in October, 1904.

The son and namesake of another noted confederate army leader is Jas. Longstreet, Jr., another cavalry officer, and now a first lieutenant of the Thirteenth regiment. Lieutenant Longstreet is on recruiting service at Oklahoma City, Okla.

Again there is the son and namesake of the famous confederate general, Gen. E. Pickett. Young Pickett is a major in the pay department, and is now on duty as paymaster in Washington.

The name of Joseph Wheeler should not be forgotten. While the ex-confederate cavalry leader, ex-representative in congress and later brigadier-general in the United States army rests in historic Arlington, his son and namesake is perpetuating the name of "Fighting Joe." He is captain of the Fifth company of coast artillery, now at Fort Williams, Me. He has had service in the Philippines as a major of volunteers, and later was an assistant instructor of ordnance and gunnery at the military academy. His career has been brilliant—an excellent reminder of his illustrious father.

A Real Wonderland.
South Dakota, with its rich silver mines, bonanza farms, wide ranges and strange natural formations, is a veritable wonderland. At Mound City, in the home of Mrs. E. D. Clapp, a wonderful case of healing has lately occurred. Her son seemed near death with lung and throat trouble. "Exhausting coughing spells occurred every five minutes," writes Mrs. Clapp, "when I began giving Dr. King's New Discovery, the great medicine, that saved his life and completely cured him." MILLIONAIRE CUTS OFF SON.

Bankruptcy of Young Pittsburg Man Reveals Cause in Father's Will Practically Disinheriting Him, Pittsburg, Pa.—The involuntary bankruptcy of Charles Donnelly, Jr., today brought out the fact that, although the son of a millionaire, the latter had cut him off with $50 a month by this provision of his will. "If at the end of five years it shall appear that Charles Donnelly, Jr., has not lived an honest, sober and industrious life, and shall have married a woman who had not always been respectable, then his portion of the estate shall be divided equally among the other heirs, provided, however, that said Charles Donnelly, Jr., shall be provided with an income of $50 a month for life."

LION IS KILLED IN A CAVE.

Hunting Party Corners Beast That Had Been Destroying Pigs and Slays It.

Escondido, Cal.—Two fine porkers belonging to G. W. Cook of Palomar were killed by a mountain lion and a hunting party was at once made up.

After a hunt of two days and nights the party located and cornered the animal in a cave. A well directed shot from a rifle dropped it at the entrance. It was a big one, measuring seven feet six inches from tip to tip.

SPIRIT OF GIVING AT CHRISTMAS

Beautiful Lesson Illustrated
From Nature.

Rev. W. C. Bittling, Pastor of Second
Baptist Church of St. Louis, Discourses.

INDECENCY OF SELFISHNESS

The best things in the world give. The sun radiates light and heat. The flowers give us their breath and blooms. The trees give us their shade and fruit. The earth gives us its coal, gems, and minerals. The air surges into our lungs with its vital gifts. Our foods give us their nourishment. All things that are about us stand with open hands, saying to men, "Help yourself."

God gives. He is all the time bestowing. He is giving through what we call nature. It is only His manifold channel through which He pours countless streams of blessings upon us. He daily gives us strength, health, opportunity, friends. Were He to cease this eternal giving for only a minute we would all vanish: "The eyes of all wait upon Thee, Thou givest them their food in due season." All creatures stand every hour about the heavenly hand. "Thou openest thine hand and satisfiest the desire of every living thing."

Only man hoards. Only in human hearts does selfishness reach its perfection. This terrible poison shrivels the spirit, and shrinks the soul until its horizon is no wider than the long, thin capital I. Isn't it a wonder that God's image should become only a caricature? Isn't it passing strange that human lives that were meant to be in accord with nature should monopolize selfishness. Even the oak drops its acorns for any animal that wants them, and a thistle sheds its seeds and fulfills its destiny when the winds scatter them far and wide. The very weeds of the ground rebuke us for our closed hands and our cold, ungenerous hearts.

The Indecency of Selfishness.
It is well that we have a Christmas season when the passion for giving has a chance. It is good that there is a time when we are shown that selfishness is indecent, and miserliness is a violation of the ideals for which we were made. How fine it is that at least one day in the year is the messenger to shame us that we are meaner than the most noxious shrub if we live for ourselves alone! This is the message of the merry times that are so near us.

The love of giving is the mark of the noblest souls. The generous impulses are the highest. Our stinginess smites us with rebuke. We save our time or money or strength by not giving, but our soul oozes out of us in a process of saving. The only way to save ourselves is to give ourselves away.

There is no telling how many homes in the world will be gloomy with sadness on Christmas day because the hearts and hands that should have made them happy have saved something. To make a child's eyes flash, its heart leap, its feet dance, its arms wave, and its throat an organ that sends out a whole symphony of thankfulness is a deed that is worthy of a parent. What of the child who is an orphan? What of the child whose parents are poor or shiftless? Were those who have all that the world can supply on the merry day to think of the homes that have no such brightness as their own, would not the electric lights of the Christmas tree and dinner table seem dimmer?

Of the Child Who is Robbed.
Joy is the child's birthright. The burdens come soon enough. What of the child that is robbed of its heart's native food of joy, and sent out into the world with the thought that it is only a cold, heartless, selfish place? Pessimists are made in early days. So are optimists. Just one bounding heart thrill made by a kindness that shows that all persons are not selfish, will seal a child's conviction that somewhere life has joys for it, and somewhere friends that are worthy of its trust. Now is the time to give children visions of such a world. And the gift is the clay that anoints the eyes, as we say, "Go, See!"

Our own hearts are fullest of blessed things after we have emptied our hands. Fat purses and lean souls are often married by the heretical priest

THE BEST CHRISTMAS GIFT

One of those Suits We Bought from Rosenwald & Weil at Tremendous Sacrifices

LIKE many big manufacturers this season, they have met with countermands and cancellations of orders from all over the country. As a result they were overloaded — they had to turn these stocks into cash. Our splendid business during the early season left us with an opening for more goods and the cash to pay for them. We made them an offer for 400 suits and overcoats, which they accepted and we give the public the benefit of it.

of prudence, or the make-believe magistate of greedy thrift. The law of displacement prevents the love of money and the love of men from occupying the human hearts at the same time. One must cast out the other. Our fortunes are often embroiled with the unseen tears of those whom we should make happy with our wealth.

Try giving to make yourself happy. I have seen many rainbows, but none so wonderful as those that are made by the shining of the holy light of gratitude through the tears of men, women and children who were delivered from darkness into day by the emancipation of a gift. The prismatic hues of all human virtues gleam through that radiant rainbow. The iridescence of it is excelled by only one other thing—the halo about the heart that gives. And, beautiful most entrancing of all, is the fact that the giver is unconscious of it, though others see its brilliance. The greatest Giver the world has ever known said: "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

Switchman's Psychic Hunch.

Tacoma, Wash.—Edward Trow, a Northern switchman, declared some psychic influence or occult premonition saved the lives of himself and a Northern Pacific train crew last evening. Trow says a cryptic knock at the door of his consciousness sent a cold chill over him that caused him to signal Engineer Sphers to stop.

The engine came to a halt where the road crosses a small gulch. Going a few feet forward Trow found that the heavy rains had washed out about thirty feet of track.

New York, Dec. 19.—Mrs. Cobden-Sanderson, the famous English suffragette, pitilessly arraigns the rich women of New York. She is not the sort of person who speaks without thought, either. She has been in America since Oct. 25, and has studied Americans in their drawing rooms, in their counting houses, in their state houses, and in their charities.

Reminded of Turkish Harem. "The New York woman has too much money to spend," Mrs. Cobden-Sanderson says. "With these enormous fortunes at her command she steepens herself in the degradation of luxury. She adorns her person until I often am minded of a Turkish harem. She measures all humanity by its clothes, as her husband measures all his fellow men by their wealth and their ability to acquire more wealth. She measures the value of a movement by the women who lead it, and these women by the fairness of their raiment. She has no time to think of the vital questions of the hour, no civic pride, because she is too busy adorning her person and steeping herself in the luxury which deadens the soul to know what really is going on in the great, pulsing world of the 'under dog'—the stratum um of humanity beneath her own. Without Wealth They Are Nothing. "In England the women of aristocracy are not always women of wealth. In New York the woman without wealth—and clothes—appears to be a mere nonentity, without power and influence."

"In England you find men spending their wealth in keeping up family estates, rather than in decking the persons of their women folk. In America, and particularly New York men give their undivided attention to making money and trust their wives to hold up the educational, intellectual and sartorial end. The Englishman takes pride in what his wife does for his country, the New York man in the appearance she makes on his money. It is money that is sapping the minds and bodies of New York's so-called aristocracy today."

"How do you expect to get people to vote for you if you don't hustle?" "My friend," answered Senator Sorghum, "the time has come when hustling is fraught with danger. The way to do now is to act modest, and let the opposition keep talking until it queers itself by saying something clumsy."—Washington Star.
